

Could osteopathy be the career for you?

Choose the ESO

The European School of Osteopathy's undergraduate degree programme provides every skill you'll need to become a successful osteopathic practitioner

The ESO is recognised globally as a leading osteopathic institution and our graduates can be found practising around the world, often working at the forefront of the profession.

Our four-year degree programme leads to the Integrated Master's Degree in Osteopathy (M.Ost), validated by Buckinghamshire New University. We teach a broad range of osteopathic techniques as part of the core curriculum, including visceral and cranial techniques, and include a course dedicated to business and personal development. Graduating with such a well-constructed skill set will allow you to stand out from the crowd.

The ESO is a cosmopolitan institution, with students of all ages, nationalities and backgrounds; each applicant is treated as an individual and we value life skills as well as academic qualifications. By choosing to study at the ESO you will benefit from a wealth of teaching experience, with people who are passionate about osteopathy and who bring out the best in their students.

What does the ESO offer?

A broad curriculum

You'll study one of the broadest programmes of osteopathic education in the UK, enabling you to treat a wide range of patients including babies and the elderly.

An established teaching clinic

You'll receive comprehensive clinical training and gain hands-on practical experience, with exposure to our specialist clinics for sports, headache, women's health and mother & baby care.

Academic quality

You'll learn from the experts; over 95% of our faculty are practising osteopaths, committed to providing the highest quality teaching and learning support and with experience of teaching osteopathy across the world.

A rich, supportive learning environment

We'll treat you as an individual, supporting you wherever we can. The ESO is a truly cosmopolitan institution and you'll make friends from all over the world and from all walks of life.

Preparation for your future career

You'll graduate with the skills you need to become a registered osteopathic practitioner and with a solid grounding in business development, so you are ready to set up in practice.

An innovative postgraduate programme

Our postgraduate courses are designed to support your professional development, with specialisms in areas such as visceral osteopathy and animal manipulation.

A superb location

Boxley House provides a truly outstanding learning environment, based in an idyllic setting in the heart of the Kent countryside yet convenient for London and mainland Europe.
